Wedding Videography Package Descriptions

The Basic Ceremony:

The Basic Ceremony was designed with economy in mind. For those that are interested in a more basic “documentation” of their Special Day – we can give you the same Professional results but at a lower rate by cutting all the extra’s. We tape a straight shot from the minute your Ceremony starts until the end of your Receiving Line – using the same professional equipment listed in the larger packages! There isn’t any editing involved with this approach – so we can “title” your DVD, and master you 3x – packaged DVD’s the same week!

Official Ceremony Package:

The Official Ceremony Package captures the “Main Event” of your special day – The Ceremony! This package includes a 2x – member Professional Video Crew, and is Digitally Videotaped using two Professional 3CCD Broadcast Camera’s. The audio during your wedding vows will be captured clearly, using Professional Wireless Lapel Microphones. We will show up at your wedding site 2x hours early to set-up our equipment. The camera’s start rolling at the beginning of the Ceremony, and do not stop until the last guest has left the sanctuary! The days footage is finely compiled & edited using our Professional Digital Editing Suite – featuring, an animated Bridal Party Listing Scroll & special graphic effects. You will receive 3x – DVD Master Copies.

Wedding And Reception Package:

With the Wedding And Reception Package you have our Professional Services for your entire wedding day! You receive our 2x – member Professional Camera Crew capturing the full ceremony – then proceeding on to the reception and filming with 1x – Camera. We capture all the essential features of your reception: Reception room layout, table & room decorations, food trays, the Grand Entrance of the Bride & Groom, guests mingling, special toasts, formal bridal dances, fast & slow dancing ... etc! All of this is again finely edited, with digital animation & graphic effects, on our Professional Final Cut Pro HD Editing Suite. You will receive 5x – DVD Master Copies, containing your full wedding day!

Wedding And Reception Package + Photo Montage:

With this package you receive the same features as the above, but also including a 100x - picture Photo Montage. This is a heart-warming presentation made up of your old photos – baby pictures through modern day, combined over a Custom Music Bed & added to your DVD Masters! With this package we provide all the equipment – to show the Montage at your reception. We arrive at the reception early, before most of the guests, and set-up a 24” Presentation Monitor & DVD Player. The Photo Montage will then play back-to-back on DVD through out the evening. This gives the reception guests a chance to come and view it when they wish – such as, before the official arrival of the Bride & Groom or as a later break from dancing.

Cinema Production Package:

Simply put – this package contains the very best of our capabilities in Digital Videography! It truly borders on a Feature Film. You receive everything listed in the packages above, with many more “Exclusive” features! We start with Pre-Ceremony footage of the Bride & Groom getting ready, and again a 2x – Camera Crew capturing the full Ceremony. We stay through the official photography shoot of post – wedding formal shots, capturing our own candid footage, and the departure of the Bride & Groom in the Limo / Trolley etc....! You receive the same 2x – person / 2x – camera crew continuing on to the reception.

Your Photo Montage Presentation is expanded here, to 200x pictures. The major addition to this entire package is – The Ever After Presentation! This combines interviews with the Bride & Groom (shot before the wedding day) using both Digital Video & Movie Film!! Please read the full details describing this production in the Specialty Description page in the back of the brochure. The Photo Montage & The Ever After Presentation are both combined, and playing on a 24” Presentation Monitor at the reception. Guest interviews are also included, which we film during the evening (thoughts and wishes for the new couple) using a Professional Microphone - for good audio.

After your special day is over – the day after at your Gift Opening, you can log onto the Internet & view a quick Mini-Web Broadcast of the Wedding Day (see a full description in the Specialty Section). When you come home from your honeymoon – you can send us 100x – more photo’s of the trip, and we will add them onto your existing Montage. One last specialty that is added here is a separate Wedding Day Highlight Set!! Your footage will be edited down to an easy to watch Highlight, and copied onto 10x DVD’s. This is a perfect gift to send off to relatives or your bridal party. This vast Cinema Edge Production Package ends with a total of: 5x – DVD Master Set of all the footage + a 10x – DVD Wedding Day Highlight Set.

Ready...roll film...Action!

Imagine, if you will, your twentieth wedding anniversary. You and your husband are snuggled up by the fire, ready for a night of reminiscing and romance.

What better way than to pop in an old movie...starring the two of you?

Filming the wedding has come a long way from your uncle's shaky VHS video, which may or may not have captured the mood – or even the sound – of your special day.

Today's videographers can do things with technology that Hollywood film producers only dreamed of 25 years ago. Film and video equipment has never been better, meaning every moment of the wedding can be captured just as you remember it.

Dan and Shelly Stanton of Cinema Edge Productions know exactly what a young, soon-to-be-wed couple wants because they've been there, together.

Their couple-on-couple method makes shooting the wedding a snap because, says Dan, "we relate to everything going on at the wedding."

"It puts everyone at ease, having the male/female approach," said Dan, who has been shooting weddings for ten years. "We have found it works very well."

Besides simply getting the ceremony and reception on digital video, the Stantons offer what they call the "Ever After Presentation".

One month before the wedding, the Stantons and their clients get together at a peaceful spot, whether by a river, on a beach, or in a vineyard. There, the couples will separate as the bride and groom are interviewed separately about how they met, what the proposal was like, and so on.

The result is a sweet portrayal of the couple that the Stantons edit to include candid shots alone, with the couple together, and of each of them talking about the other.

"We just let the camera roll," said Dan, a real-life film director who just shot his first movie. Dan's love of film carries into his work in many ways, but most uniquely by the combined use of a Super16mm movie camera & Digital Video to shoot a portion of the couple's love story.

The result is an artsy, rich film that has the look and feel of an authentic movie, says Dan.

"It definitely has a more pleasing aesthetic to it," he said. "It's got that wonderful film flicker to it and is great for the romantic shots."

The rest of the show, whether on the beach, in the church, or at the reception, is all about sights, sounds, and capturing every single candid moment.

While the Stantons prefer to film the entire story - from "how we met" until the last toast - they are willing to work with a broad range of budgets.

Some couples choose only to get their love story filmed. Others want the Stantons to be there for every moment, which works best, said Dan.

"There is an ideal flow to the day that allows us to get all of the important shots, but also lets us get the little things that brides and grooms often miss," he said. "It's really an all-night event."

For the whole package, the Stantons will include the love story with a photo-montage (shown at the reception), and then footage before, during, and after the ceremony, guest interviews, and full reception coverage with multiple cameras.

“The interviews with the guests go over so well,” he said. “When the married couple look back and watch the DVD, it really is meaningful.”

As for something being meaningful – nothing could be more so than, watching your young selves twenty years from now. When it’s your time, pop it in, sit back with your spouse, and let the tears – and memories – flow.

Dan’s Tips for Hiring a Videographer

While it’s true that most can hold a video camera and get the gist of an evening, there is nothing quite like having a professional there on site to film your special wedding day.

Videographer and film director Dan Stanton, who owns Cinema Edge Productions, says that to find the very best for your budget, there are some basic things to check on:

- Ask to see a DVD Demo of their work.
- On the demo, check the sound and picture quality. Are wireless microphones used?
- Does the videographer use high quality equipment, like 3CCD Broadcast Digital Video Camera’s, Jib (boom arms), and Steady Cam’s?
- Ask how they will be dressed on your wedding day? Does their clothing attire meet your standards?
- Meet before the wedding to discuss any special shots you need: your grandmother, the first time you see your intended, etc.
- Discuss the music he or she will be using in the video.
- Ask if all the services you would like are included in a package price, or if there is additional charges for extra DVD’s, etc.
